Citizens clamor for improved downtown, survey shows

by Michael Drummond

The comments have been tallied, and the city of Lemon Grove and residents are ready to begin planning the future vision of Lemon Grove.

Approximately 20 members of the city's General Plan Advisory Committee listened as consultant Rick Alexander identified what issues and concerns residents listed at the recent March 29 Town Hall meeting held at Lemon Grove Middle School.

"If we take this list of concerns and apply them to the feedback we'll get from the mailed residential general plan survey, we should pretty much have an idea exactly what the Lemon Grove community wants for this plan," said Alexander.

And according to those town hall comments, residents are requesting a more attractive downtown Lemon Grove. A downtown of small town character reflected in the architecture of Victorian facades.

And yet, at the same time, a revitalized downtown offering the community a diverse selection of shops, entertainment and recreation establishments such as a movie theater and new restaurants.

Some are envisioning residential housing intermixed in commercial use areas. Others are requesting more dental and medical offices for the area. Services that some community members recognized as services underrepresented in the community.

"They don't want what one resident labeled the 'existing downtown hodge podge,'" said Alexander. "They want to buff things up."

But how far and to what cost is the community and city willing to "buff up" downtown and the community of Lemon Grove is the question that the General Plan Advisory Committee will be evaluating.

"We've heard what the community wants, but what we need to consider is how can we address these issues effectively, and more importantly, what are the residents and the city willing to do," said Alexander.

"For example, residents want to maintain small town, country charm, but at the same time have recognized the importance of safety and appear to want sidewalks and curbs. Yet are they willing to consider an assessment cost for this need. We've asked pertinent questions on the General Plan survey about this, it'll be interesting to correlate the two answers."

Town hall comments also focused on the visual quality presently existing in the city. Lemon Grove Avenue and Broadway are two areas that were specifically cited for better maintenance and landscape. "I'd have to say the most common complaint was unmaintained property," said Alexander. "We had comments like 'they got junk cars in the front yard and maybe if we had sidewalks this problem could be eliminated.'"

Zoning issues focusing on housing and residential development were of special

Chamber hits jackpot at installation dinner

The gamble paid off in a big way for the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce at its recent installation dinner, which included a casino night.

Chamber members expressed satisfaction after a full evening's entertainment.

This year, the Chamber teamed up with the Knights of Columbus and used the Knights' "Casino."

Held at the Knight's hall, the evening began with a brief chamber installation of officers and directors.

Ron Skillman, outgoing president, gave an overview of the past year, thanked those who were ending their terms and welcomed the new Board of Directors.

The 1995-96 Executive Board includes Jim Murphy of J & L Security as president, Jim Butcher of AAA Copy as president-elect, Cookie Ringhand of Realty World Pro-Consultants as secretary and Vaughn Jacobs of Prite Financial as treasurer.

Following a short state of the city address from Mayor Bob Burns, the crowd received gaming instructions and hints on silent auction bidding.

The ladies from the Knights of Columbus served a buffet of three types of lasagna, mesquite chicken strips, sweet and sour meatballs, tossed salad, rolls and butter and a fabulous cherry cheesecake from Da Boyz Pizza.

Hungry guests had dinner first while avid gamblers headed straight for the tables!

Sixteen Blackjack tables along with Roulette and Craps made room for everyone to play without waiting.

Celebrity dealers included Supervisor Dianne Jacob, Mayor Bob Burns, City Manager Doug Yount, Miss Lemon Grove, both 1994 and 1995 plus a host of knights.

RSVP force adds 16 new senior volunteers

by Michelle Drummond

Sixteen rookies are rollin' out into the streets ready to take a bite out of crime in the Spring Valley and Lemon Grove communities.

The Sheriff's Department graduated sixteen new seniors to the volunteer patrol program Tuesday morning.

On hand to offer congratulations as well as the earned diplomas were the following officials from the two communities: Captain Bill Flores, Assistant Sheriff Robert De Steunder, Lemon Grove Mayor Bob Burns, Lemon Grove City Manager Doug Yount, Bob Cederdahl, president of the Casa de Oro Business Association, Dan Reed, president of the Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce, Nancy Coate, a retired senior volunteer of the American Red Cross.

The 55 years and up seniors have paid their dues to assist law enforcement. Each graduate attends 60 hours of training. By the time they hit the streets, they are knowledgeable in traffic control, CPR, first aid, radio procedures, report writing, traffic control and patrol observations. But before they even begin training, they must have a medical waiver from their doctor stating that they are medically fit for the post.

"They are an incredible resource to the community, and free up time that the officers may need to devote to more serious matters," said Deputy Sheriff Lenice Lopez.

Started in Encinitas last year, the program has taken off in leaps and bounds. Lemon Grove was the second city after Encinitas to implement the program. A block grant of $8,000 supplied by the county and a Grossmont/Mt. Helix Improvement Association donation of $4,000 provided the necessary monies for the Spring Valley program.

The Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in assisting with money supplied by the

Caltrans, City closer to accord on Troy/Palm ramp

by Mike Drummond

Lemon Grove and Caltrans representatives are one step closer to finalizing an memorandum of agreement (MOA) that will eliminate the Troy/Palm off-ramps and on-ramps for State Route 125.

At an April 4 special meeting, city representatives including City Manager Doug Yount and Mayor Bob Burns met with Caltrans representatives to discuss the changes Route 125 will create for the city.

According to Yount, a compromise was reached that eliminates the much controversial ramps proposed for Troy/Palm and Ildica Street.

In past months, the city stated its position that the construction of ramps in the area would bring too much traffic into the community.

Traffic that would flow from the prospective off-ramp into the Palm Middle School area presenting a safety issue for the school children.

With proposed ramps, 32 parcels of land and 18 homes would have been acquired by Caltrans.

With no ramps, only 28 parcels could be effectively taken along with 14 homes. If ramps are not built, and the project continues with the proposed overpass extending over Troy Street, the project cost will be $2.4 million less.

Yount said the MOA will address the ramp issue as well as provide more specifics outlining improvements that are defined by the environmental impact report and other studies.

The two also agreed on a widening and re-alignment of Troy and Palm streets. In the past, the city was against the idea of the re-alignment but Caltrans persuaded the city that safety was involved.

"Are there going to be sidewalks on Palm by the Middle School down to Skyline Avenue or what? We need to be more specific about these finer details."
— Craig Lake

"After looking over their studies, we realized that it wasn't practical or really safe to not have the widening," said Yount.

One issue that still remains on the table between Caltrans and the city is the closing of a number of streets.

"It wasn't included in the original agreement between us so we need to make sure the MOA has strict compliance with the closing of streets," said Councilman Craig Lake. "Are there going to be sidewalks on Palm by the Middle School down to Skyline Avenue or what? We need to be more specific about these finer details."

Sheldon Craig, Caltrans chief of design for District 11, agreed with Yount that by accepting the MOA a compromise could be reached, but could also change at a moment's notice.

"Is it a done deal? No," said Craig. "Sacramento and the county still have to look over these conditions and give their approval. Having ramps off the freeway would provide access to areas of the county. They could question it."

In the Service

Marine Pfc. Michael Y. Huntsman, a 1994 graduate of Mount Miguel High School recently completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Froilan S. Hermoso, son of Pascuala S. Hermoso of Lemon Grove, has completed a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean and Persian Gulf aboard the destroyer tender USS Cape Cod.

Hermoso was one of more than 1,400 sailors aboard the 645-foot-long repair ship, homeported in San Diego. Hermoso and fellow Sailors used the tender's high-tech electronics repair equipment, sophisticated machine shops, and divers with underwater welding equipment to provide repair services to U.S. Navy ships in port in Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates. Hermoso's ship can perform a wide-range of shipboard maintenance and also can provide logistics support to Navy units in remote areas such as the Middle East.

Earlier in the deployment, Hermoso and fellow crew members spent two months in Yokosuka, Japan, where they completed more than 2,000 repair jobs in support of Seventh Fleet. Hermoso also provided in-depth repair services for ships in the Persian Gulf, which were working in support of the "no-fly" zone over southern Iraq.

In addition to traveling 23,493 miles during the deployment, Hermoso and the Cape Cod crew also visited Hong Kong, Singapore, Bali, Indonesia and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

He joined the Navy in 1984.

Marine Sgt. John D. Haddock, son of Marjorie S. Haddock of Lemon grove, recently reported for duty with Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 262, 1st Marine Air Wing, Okinawa, Japan.

The 1982 graduate of Mount Miguel High School of Spring Valley joined the Marine Corps in April 1987.

interest to the advisory committee. Once residential concerns were identified from the town hall comments, Community Planning Director Jim Butler addressed the advisory committee on residential housing density planning defined by the existing general plan. Butler identified the existing four residential areas ranked from low density all the way to medium-high density.

City manager Doug Yount cautioned the committee to also remember that if commercial use and housing is to be intermixed there could be some gains in one area, and losses in another.

"There could be a trade off," said Yount. If housing is combined with commercial use the trade off could be in sales or property tax, or in the facilitation of jobs. More residential housing in the commercial area could mean less jobs since dwellings are taking the place of businesses. These are all options you must look at and consider when providing the city's vision for the future."

Personal comments from Mayor Bob Burns

Senior patrol

Congratulations to another class of Senior Volunteer Patrol personnel. We welcome you to our very special group of citizens who are making a difference in the community.

Your 60+ hours of instruction is just the beginning of your education in Law Enforcement and community relations. You are both cops and ambassadors in the areas that you patrol.

The success of the Senior Patrol has been dramatic in the more than fifteen months that it has been on the streets. We are finding more ways to be effective and to assist the deputies, as time passes, and there will be even more in the future.

The impact that this avocation has had on the community is a positive one all the way. But in my observation it has been even more beneficial to the members of our group themselves. Staying active upon retirement is essential to a healthy continuation of life. The temptation is great, and too often the case where an old person just gives up living because they feel useless. Instead of dying the slow death of a soap opera watcher, our elderly men and women now have a reason and a purpose to live. The Senior Patrol is doing just that, and it can be a benefit to many more who may want to enlist in the ranks of our troops.

Now that the academy is over, and the lips have healed from the CPR exercises with the plastic manikins, it is time to memorize those radio codes, practice the broadcast jargon, and sharpen the lookout for lawbreakers in our community. There are handicapped parking violators to give citations to. There are abandoned vehicles to tag, and there are homes to check out when the owners are away. The "You Are Not Alone" calls and visits can save a life, or at least make someone more comfortable. There are traffic duties to perform and the many other errands that can save a deputy the time and steps that are more needed in more serious work. That's a 10-4, right?

Keep that Police car moving through the neighborhoods, and maintain a law enforcement profile in the community. You will be waved at, saluted and cheered as you make your presence known. Visit the schools, the seniors at the Senior Center and the business locations around town. And, ALWAYS keep an ear glued to that radio. Lenice or Bill may be calling you to send you on an errand or just test your radio skills. We still must earn and continue to reinforce our trusted place in the scheme of things with the Sheriff's personnel. The patrol has come a long way, but it is will on probation in a way, and probably will be for a long time. Being a help is a fine goal, but being in the way, or somehow impeding the performance of our sworn police officers, is just what we don't want to do.

Once again, welcome to this select cadre of dedicated volunteers, and that is a 10-98 for me today.

The president's turn

by Paul Treske

The past 100 days have indisputably belonged to Newt Gingrich. He promised America a contract by which he would assure House passage of a number of governmental, tax and welfare changes that would alter the balance of power in Washington and elsewhere. He did just that and has every right to preen and celebrate.

But the 100 days of Newt are over and the spotlight switches elsewhere. To be sure, the Senate will now wrestle with the Gingrich legacy; pass some relatively intact and change some almost beyond recognition. But sometime in the days to come, we will have the days of Clinton as well.

There is much in the Gingrich package that President Clinton opposes. He is on record as critical of the cuts in funding for indigent women and children, reduction of funding for school-provided children's breakfasts, the savaging of his Ameri-Corps program, severe reduction of student loans and, perhaps the most, a tax relief plan that brazenly favors the wealthy.

Cartoonist Gary Trudeau, whose "Doonesbury" strip, though liberal in content, skewers with equal joy some on the left, portrays Bill Clinton as a waffle, unable to take a stand on much of anything. Unfortunately, thus far into his four-year term, this is more truth than fiction. He has failed to present a cogent vision to the nation and has instead vacillated all too frequently on what and who he will or will not support.

But the "days of Clinton" are coming and we will, hopefully, finally begin to take a true measure of the man's presence of spine. The 100 days work of Gingrich, with or without Senate alteration, will begin arriving on his desk in the next several months and how he handles these will do much to determine his place in history.

It is a mixed blessing within William Jefferson Clinton that he believes in government by accommodation rather than confrontation. He sees governing as being best accomplished through compromise among those whose ultimate goals are similar.

Unfortunately for him and for us all, he is not president during the time of Coolidge. Great and highly divisive issues strike America today and there is little call for compromise and accommodation. Newt Gingrich, to his credit, understands this and aggressively, with singleness of purpose, has usurped the national initiative.

But Clinton's turn is around the corner. He has the choice of mental vacillation and eventual approval of those things to which he is instructively opposed. Or the choice of staking out a position that says "This I may sign, but that I will veto because it is best for America that I do so."

The president entered office on the wave of promises that he would end stalemate in Washington. He well understands that excessive use of the veto is at the very heart of stalemate. But, he has, thus far, stood for higher taxes on the wealthy, more money for education, meaningful deficit reduction and compassion for the poor and helpless and to weakly sign off into law the Gingrich agenda would be final confirmation to his former supporters that, although a man of intelligence and charm, he lacks the will and inner strength to be president.

In recent days, he has began to speak out against the worst of the 100 days package. But whether or not this translates into taking a politically risky stand when his turn comes, is still a matter of doubt.

PG Perspectives

Sex, sex and more sex

by Phillip Giannangeli

When the subject of sex comes up, you can be sure there will be interest. Whether it's prurient, curious, repressive or whatever, people usually pay attention when talk turns to matters of sex. You don't have to look any further than Madison Avenue, the British royals or religious right political groups to verify that. So this column is going to be about SEX, SEX and more SEX. That should insure readership at least into the second paragraph.

Sex. We try to teach about it in schools, but apparently not many folks are happy with the results. To some, the school's efforts are just not sexy enough while for others it's the baseball equivalent of the opposing team hitting a home run and scoring. At least in this area, though, I can't be blamed. I'm not involved in sex education - certainly not the teaching of it, and, if truth be told, I was a slow learner. With that disclaimer, let me get to some interesting stuff on sex.

Sex in Britain is always an attention grabber. You don't have to look much beyond the escapades of the royal family to appreciate that. If Di isn't doing it, Chuck surely is. Even some cabinet-level executives (most recently a bank official) get caught in indiscretions (leading to the provocative headline "Bonking in the Bank").

And with the Brits, it's always more fascinating because of the partners they seem to get involved with: folks in the horsy set and, with the bank official, a female journalist who disclosed the story herself (remember "Hell hath no fury...)" Well, move aside Chuck and Di, Andrew and Fergie and the rest of you. There's another sexational story coming out of London. It's the Tart Card exposé.

Tart Cards have invaded London. The British, always tight lipped about sexual matters, are now having a problem with these Tart Cards. To the uninformed - as I was until just very recently - Tart Cards are cards (a bit bigger than 3 by 5) that are posted in public telephone booths. The cards, as the name implies, advertise Tarts. The Tarts being advertised, though, are not the variety found in pastry shops. You're probably way ahead of me by now, but let me fill in some of the details.

Tart Cards are advertisements for prostitutes. They usually have a provocative pitch, sometimes a picture or drawing and then a phone number. These cards are placed in phone booths all over London, allowing the prostitutes to figuratively work the streets without walking the streets. That's one of the advantages the supporters of these cards site. The cards keep street walkers off the streets.

Critics have a different slant. They don't care to have these advertised Tarts on the streets or in phone booths for that matter. In their minds, tarts belong in the kitchen or on the tea wagon (an idea boldly suggested on one of the cards). Critics maintain that such a public display of what is an illegal activity has no place in the capitol of the British Empire.

Now don't get the idea that sex is somehow limited to the U.K. As you might suspect, we have some here, too. A recent report by Dr. Georgia Witkin published in Parade Magazine pointed to a number of interesting things about American sex.

At the risk of misinterpreting some of the points with a hasty synopsis, let me just point out that Americans too are doing it. And we're doing it, on the average, once or twice a week. And, according to the Janus Report by doctors Samuel and Cynthia Janus, we're not too bad at doing it either. And for those of you who might wonder about such things, we still manage to get the older we get. Says one of the good doctors, "Some of my elderly patients are still enjoying good sex, although they can't always remember the name of their partner."

If there's a more optimistic note on which to end, I don't know what it would be. There you have it: SEX, SEX and more SEX.

Child Welfare: Let's Order a Wakeup Call

by Robert Alan Wright

April is not only National Child Abuse Prevention and Awareness Month, it's a time to advocate for all children and the prevention of abuse. Let's order a wake-up call in child welfare. Without children, we have no future.

Would you rather see a child smile? Or would you rather have a child see you, through the barrel of a gun? If we don't make children the center of humanity now. They'll make us the center of their violence tomorrow.

A case of child abuse was reported at a rate of every 10 seconds in the United States in 1993, according to the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse. Nearly 3 million reports were received during 1993 and 1 million victims confirmed.

Locally, there are ways to help many children at risk in San Diego County regarding abuse and its lifetime of issues. To be exact, 56, 370 children received social service from Child Protective Services from 1993 to 1994. Child Protective Services aren't the bad guys and they can't protect all the children. Society must protect the children!

As a child, one 19-year-old alcoholic was told repeatedly, "You'll never amount to anything. You'll always be a failure." Eventually, he believed it. Eventually, he lived it. During his teenage years, the adolescent drank and smoked pot to be "cool."

One girl reached her 10th birthday thinking she was retarded. A victim of emotionally abusive parents, she had always been called "dumb" or "stupid" when she didn't excel in school as her older sister did. These scenarios have to stop.

Let's call our children the gifts to our future. Whether they're conceived out of passion or love, they're a gift to all of us. Most people value and cherish a gift. It doesn't matter what ethnic group or culture that child comes from, he or she is a gift for the future.

Your daughter may become a bank president or she may be the next gold medalist at the Olympics. Your future grandson may become a famous inventor. Your neighbor's child may become a scholar or an esteemed diplomat. All children have a potential to leave a legacy. Children are our gifts to the future, the molders of tomorrow's world. Let us see that the ones who are abused will have the same chance to forge the future, as the ones who are not abused. We were the gifts our parents gave to their future. If we destroy the potential of our children, we're impacting our future because, without children, we have no future.

Robert Alan Wright of La Mesa is a survivor of child abuse and is currently working on his master's degree in the Human Services Field.

Water is hotter than oil

by State Senator David Kelley

Researchers at the Indiana Center on Global Change and World Peace say that water will actually replace oil as the prime trigger for international conflict. Without water, no economy can survive.

Here in California, we have been living with water problems for the last 50 years. The more populated we become, the more dependent we are on water. Southern California is more vulnerable than any other part of the state to these changes.

At the state level, I am focusing on those areas which affect us most: appropriate use of water rights, the incorporation of water supply into infrastructure planning and the Bay-Delta Accord.

Water rights. I have introduced SCR 20 which asks the state Water Resources Control Board to review the rights granted to the federal government pursuant to state law. I want to know if the federal government has violated any terms or conditions of a license or permit or has gone beyond its jurisdiction in setting quality standards for fish and wildlife improvement in the Central Valley Project of the Bay-Delta estuary. I think the results of this investigation will put California back into the driver's seat.

Infrastructure. If we do not make plans for the future through additional facilities and improved water management, we will experience severe water shortages by the year 2020. Senator Jim Costa has introduced two bills, SB 900 and SB 901, which would create a comprehensive plan to increase the reliability of the state's water supply. SB 900 will seek voter approval current and anticipated needs. SB 901 is designed to give local water districts a clear role in the local planning process to ensure that cities and counties make development decisions based on a complete knowledge of the availability of water supplies.

Bay-Delta Accord. An historic state/federal accord on Bay-Delta environmental protection was signed on Dec. 15, 1994. This accord contains standards that both state and federal governments can support and allows the federal government to return primary control over Bay-Delta water management to the state. However, this accord is only an interim solution to the complicated problems of Bay-Delta management. Much is left to be done, including coordination between state and federal water projects, funding of projects to address non-flow-related factors affecting the Bay-Delta ecosystem and allocating responsibility for meeting flow requirements between all water exporters from the Delta.

It is imperative that you pay attention to these critical issues and tell your state representatives that you want them to be active in representing San Diego interests on the water resource issues. I have a deep respect for this earth and the forces of nature which provide us with sustenance, beauty and a high quality of life. Working to achieve a balance of environmental and economic interests is my sole concern.

'Dreamcoat' choirs wanted

San Diego Playgoers are looking for two local children's choirs to perform with the national Broadway touring company of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's musical rendition of the Biblical story of Joseph and his eleven brothers will come to San Diego's Civic Theatre Aug. 22 - 27. Two amateur choirs of 18 - 22 children each, ranging in age from 9-14 years, are needed as an integral element of the performance.

Producers will conduct a "Dreamcoat Choir Challenge" at 9:30 a.m. May 10th Civic Theatre, 3rd & B streets, downtown.

Each choir must prepare two songs: the "Challenge" song (sheet music and tape will be provided) and a song of their choice. The producers will look for pitch, volume and smiling faces.

Choirs must pass a preliminary telephone interview and complete an application form. Choirs interested in entering the Challenge should contact Rory Gaetzman at at 231-8619.

county. The Senior Volunteer Program is co-sponsored by the American Red Cross Senior Volunteer Program that provides the necessary insurance policy for coverage of the seniors on the streets.

According to Lopez, 96 senior volunteers of Spring Valley and Lemon Grove work one six-hour shift per week and attend a monthly meeting. Shifts run Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m and from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"We pair them up, and that's where the fun begins for them," said Lopez. We've got our our own Starsky and Hutch, and the M&M Boys on our senior patrol. We even have husbands and wives ready to roll out there together."

And once "Starsky and Hutch" roll, the action begins. The patrols ride through the community neighborhoods checking homes of those residents vacationing, and drive slowly down the streets looking for suspicious characters.

Since the program has been initiated, Lopez said there has been a reduction in residential and commercial crimes.

"There's been a serious drop in burglaries because of these surveillance patrols. It's a preventative method," said Lopez.

The seniors provide preventative measures at crime or accident scenes for law officers as well as paramedics.

The new volunteers are from Spring Valley and Lemon Grove.

From Lemon Grove: Valentin Beil, Joseph Garcia, Donald Maguire, Kenneth Sellers and Leroy Stokes.

Vern Marston, retired from Union Bank, was the lucky fishbowl winner. Several members became "Pool Sharks" and a good time was had by all. Thanks to Dirk, Terry and their crew.

Hoppin' good time at egg hunt

Food 4 [illegible] put more money in city treasury

by Paula Zindell

Plans are under way for a new discount supermarket to be built in Lemon Grove generating 75 new jobs and sales tax revenues to the city of $55,000 annually.

The City Council approved five separate actions at Tuesday night's meeting that clear the way for a new Food 4 Less store to be located on Broadway just west of Home Depot. Included in the project site along with the 54,400-square-foot store will be an additional 4,000 square feet set aside at the corner of West Street and Broadway for future development.

Building permits will be applied for by the developer, Cahan Properties, in thirty days now that the council has taken action.

Approval of the new addition was not unanimous. Five actions addressing the general plan amendment, zone reclassification, a tentative parcel map outlining consolidation of properties and street vacation including a planned developed permit, were opposed by council members Mary Teresa Sessom and Craig O. Lake. Mayor Bob Burns and councilmen Tom Clabby and Jerome Legerton supported the actions in a 3-2 vote.

Sessom and Lake raised concerns about the need for another competitor bleeding business away from existing supermarkets in Lemon Grove.

"I have a hard time voting for something that may have a negative effect on those businesses that have provided a business backbone to Lemon Grove," said Lake. "They're only so many nickels in Lemon Grove, so to speak, are we going to rob and steal from them?"

According to Robert Cahan of Cahan Properties, Food 4 Less will generate 83 percent of new business from people in the community who shop outside Lemon Grove.

"We are only going to bleed about 17 percent from the other discount supermarkets in the area" said Cahan. "Competition generates new sales dollars creating a situation for the consumer to want to buy more products because the prices are good. Everyone will win from this."

With eight locations in the San Diego area and 250 locations nationwide, Food 4 Less recently was purchased by the Ralph's supermarket chain.

The proposed move into Lemon Grove was initiated by a San Diego countywide marketing study. "Countywide, Lemon Grove proved to be the best," said Cahan. "It has easy access off of state Route 94, offers easy access from the La Mesa and Spring Valley areas and offers the least number of competitors."

Food 4 Less offers discount prices on off labels and offers an additional savings due to cutbacks on labor costs. "We are able to offer great prices because we let our consumers bag their own merchandise and we can pass on that savings to them in product."

But Lemon Grove resident Mary Thompson agreed with Lake and Sessom.

"We have Super Saver right down the street for discount prices, and we have a Lucky's and Smart and Final," said Thompson. "What we need is a Kmart or Wal-mart. We don't need anymore food products. Food sales are not going to produce the tax revenues, and those 75 jobs will probably be some of minimum wage. What we need in Lemon Grove is a department store."

Food 4 Less will be less than a mile from Super Saver. "I'd have to say it doesn't concern us too much. Right now they have a store off of University Avenue, about five miles away, and our prices still beat theirs," said Super Saver Manager David Ifrid.

"I have a hard time voting for something that may have a negative effect on ... Lemon Grove. They're only so many nickels in Lemon Grove. Are we going to rob and steal from them?"

— Councilman Lake

"We do daily comparisons with that Food 4 Less and always come out on top. We have the best prices in town. Sure, they'll take some of our customers but right now I would say it's not much of a worry."

The $8 million project was estimated to run a higher price tag. Cahan Properties approached City Manager Doug Yount to negotiate with the city a less costly package. The privately financed project lies within the city's redevelopment area, but at this time has not received any assistance from the Redevelopment Agency. It was at the bargaining table that Food 4 Less offered Lemon Grove incentives for support of the plan which included: generation of 75 new jobs, a net sales tax increase of $55,000 annually, and property tax increment to the RDA at $45,000 yearly. Lemon Grove, in turn, will bear the cost of installing an estimated $100,000 traffic signal at West and Broadway.

The proposed exterior design will reflect the design of its neighbor, Home Depot in terms of colors and building exterior. The site will be landscaped with trees and shrubs.

Once permit applications are accepted, construction is planned for July.

Crews will begin removing residential units at 3505 through 3581 West Street, and 7435 through 7465 North Avenue. The developer has acquired options to purchase the properties. The Value Inn Motel on Broadway will not be affected by the development. Food 4 Less could be opening its doors to the Lemon Grove community by January or February of next year.

Parents given facts on AIDS/HIV

by Paula Zindell

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," said Christine Cunning, a public health educator of the County department of Health Services, to parents and children at the Spring Valley Head Start Pre-School Program.

Cunning and other members of the Project AIDS LINK COALITION of East County are participating in programs and events to raise more public awareness of the HIV virus and AIDS in honor of April being designated as this year's AIDS Awareness Month. Spring Valley is her first stop, the city of Lemon Grove will be her second next week.

To a small crowd of mothers, children teachers, and health aides, Cunning discussed the importance for parents to openly communicate with their children about AIDS and HIV and outlined important prevention measures both parents and children should follow.

"You have to realize that your children have heard of HIV and AIDS and know that it is very serious, and therefore, they can become scared," said Cunning. "They need to be reassured that they will not become infected with HIV from toilet seats, swimming pools, playground equipment, everyday activities or from playing with a child whose mother or father has HIV or AIDS."

One out of every five people with AIDS today is between 20 and 30 years of age. It can take up to 10 years for the symptoms to appear, which seems to suggest that most likely these young adults were infected while in their teen years. Cunning said to help prevent the spread of the HIV infection among young people, parents and their children need to talk about the hard facts and share family values.

"Prevention is most effective when young people hear these messages early," said Cunning. "And if they don't come to you with questions, then begin the discussion with them yourself. Be very matter of fact about it. Find out if they know the right information about it, and if they don't, correct the wrong information. Teach your child not to pick up needles and syringes that they may find lying around."

But before a discussion can be

Without Your Help

Michelle may not graduate

A serious accident has left her in shock.

Ordinarily one of the first tasks for emergency personnel at an accident scene is to administer blood plasma products intravenously. This is continued in the emergency room and throughout the post-trauma recovery period.

A serious shortage of blood plasma caused by increased demand means that Michelle and people like her need your help.

Call today to learn how you can help. You will be compensated for your time.

B-Words Personal comments from Mayor Bob Burns

An Unabashed Commercial

I do not recall ever doing this before, so please forgive me for this taking advantage of my readers. This has to do with a truly fun experience that I am letting you in on, one and all...

A resurgence of the thespian passions are being released on the Friday night before Old Time Days, the following Saturday and Sunday, and a repeat of the same a week later. At St. John of the Cross church Hall, the musical Lil' Abner will explode upon the Lemon Grove cultural scene. The six performances will feature all ages and talents to portray the ever popular production of the old comic strip characters.

A young group of directors, choreographers, stage managers, and musicians will magically create Dogpatch and its environs with all of the residents intact. Not since the Lemon Grove Players held forth in our town, has such enjoyment been offered by so many of our fun filled residents. As with most amateur presentations, it will be done on a shoestring and with the love of theater as motivation. The proceeds, if any, will go to subsidize St. Johns elementary school which educates many children in Lemon Grove, without taxpayer costs.

What is my interest, you may ask? Well, it might just be the type casting of yours truly as "Mayor Dan'l P. Dawgmeat" as Dogpatch's top official. I guess it even referred to my profession as a Veterinarian in my nom de plume. Anyway, the cast is made up of all ages, and some with the most beautiful voices in town, mine not included. This is a truly wholesome, and enjoyable production, and it will bring back many memories of the old days, for some, when the "funnies" were really funny.

Those of us who remember Popeye, and Alley OOP, and Dick Tracy, have the memories of a clean and healthy humor. Todays psycho intrigues of Mary Worth, and Apartment 3-G just don't qualify as "funnies" in my book.

It is hoped that this effort might awaken the theater in our city once more and embellish what Theresa Wells is doing with her Nutcracker, and her ballet productions. The Arts are healthy and necessary to any community, no matter what the economic climate is at present. We need to involve our young and old in the free spirit, and whimsy of the performing Arts to make our lives whole. Imagination and flight of fancy is the spice of life, and makes the humdrum and mundane worth while...

So make a date for any of May 12, 13, 14, or 19, 20, 21 and see Marryin Sam, and Sadie Hawkins Day, and of course Lil'Abner and Daisy Mae who will unfold before your eyes the intrigue and excitement of Dogpatch, U.S.A.

Ralph Reed statements partly right about 'Christian nation,' leaders say

by Howard Owens

Conservative religious activists should be careful with their rhetoric, agree some local Jewish leaders, but there is some historical precedent for calling the United States a "Christian nation."

Asked to react to remarks made recently by Ralph E. Reed, executive director of the Christian Coalition, leaders in both the Jewish community and the Christian political movement said we all need to acknowledge that this country offers religious freedom to people of all faiths, or no faith.

Reed said it is a "blatant wrong" for some in the Christian political movement to call this a "Christian nation."

"This is a Christian nation from a historical perspective," said Elaine Lepow, principal of the San Diego Hebrew Day School and an El Cajon resident. "But I'm in favor of separation of church and state. As an educator, I appreciate the need to teach our children values so that they understand the difference between right and wrong, but to teach the values of Christianity, Judaism or Islam is inappropriate."

Reed made his remarks earlier this month at a meeting of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in New York. The New York Times reported April 4 that Reed acknowledged that the term "Christian nation" made Jews uncomfortable because it conjured painful memories of persecutions, such as the Inquisition and the Holocaust.

Even while acknowledging the Christian roots of many of the Founders, Lepow said she doesn't approve of the way some in the Christian political community use that information, because the Founders clearly intended this to be a nation where all people have religious freedom.

"I don't feel as an Orthodox Jew that it (Christian-nation rhetoric) has any place in politics," Lepow said. "It doesn't have any place where we as a religious minority feel that we are under the good graces of anybody in the majority."

Aaron Gold, rabbi at Ner Tamid Synagogue in Rancho Bernardo and resident of La Mesa, said values are taught in school in all subjects, but parents need to also teach values.

"Values should be taught in the home by parents," Gold said. "If parents don't teach values and practice those values then they are raising people without conscience."

It is a matter of historical fact that this is a Christian nation, according to Don Smith, county coordinator for the Christian Coalition, but that doesn't mean that religious minorities are unwelcome. He acknowledges the religious freedom guaranteed under the Constitution.

As evidence of the nation's Christian heritage, Smith notes that 90 percent of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and framers of the Constitution were Christian, and that as late as 1890, the U.S. Supreme Court referred to this as a Christian nation.

"We've always held the position in the Christian Coalition that we welcome anybody who shares our values to join us in an effort to restore morality and religious principles to our nation and public life," Smith said. "That's the distinction between Christianity and every other religion that I'm aware of: Ours is a position of tolerance, and that's what this country was founded on. All people are welcome to enjoy the benefits of life with us, but we are still a nation under God, and that God is the creator of the universe, the Judeo-Christian God."

El Cajon City Councilman Bob McClellan, who is also active in the Christian Coalition, said Christians should be sensitive to the fears of Jews; it's part of this nation's heritage. Among the first laws passed in the new country, McClellan said, was the "Deluder Satan Act."

The act, McClellan said, was passed very much with the memory of the Inquisition on the people's mind. The law stated that all people should be educated in Scripture because Satan would use ignorance of Scripture to delude people about God's will. It was the feeling of early settlers, McClellan said, that the Inquisition was a product of ignorance among common people about what the Scriptures said.

McClellan often promotes the works of David Barton, a pop historian who is an advocate for the notion that this is a Christian nation. Barton says that in the First Amendment that the Founders defined the word "religion" as "Christian."

Todd Keegan, also an El Cajon councilman, who has become East County's most vocal critic of the Christian political movement, is skeptical of Reed's statements.

"When you talk about Ralph Reed, you are looking at a campaign strategist," Keegan said. "His job, as I understand it, is to get right-wing candidates elected. As a strategy, he may say and do things he doesn't necessarily agree with but thinks will help his candidates."

Jewish leaders say it's important for Christians to remember that they have rights in this country also.

"This is not a theocracy," said Nadja Frank, director of the Jewish Community Relations Council. "The Founding Fathers separated church and state specifically so that within the greater Christian community minorities could have a sense of freedom than they otherwise would have had."

by Paula Zindell

They are creating a kaleidoscope of different colors, of different talents to present to 8th-graders at Mount Miguel High School for the April 26 Incoming Freshman Orientation Night.

The PTSA has been busy at work preparing a night of entertainment and spectacle plus class exhibits featuring all the positive, multifaceted classes and programs that Mount Miguel offers to the students and the community.

"We want these kids, their parents, and the Spring Valley community to see for themselves what's special about Mount Miguel," said Vice Principal Ed Arrieta. "We always get a bad rap for the crime, gang activity and other negative situations that can be associated with Spring Valley. Seeing is believing and we want them to make up their own minds."

The "Kaleidoscope of Talents" event will kick off at 5 p.m. with a variety of entertainment provided by students, parents and teachers Theater classes will provide skits, and will be joined by the choral group singing an array of medleys. The marching band will also strike up a tune for the folks. Some members of the JROTC drill team will demonstrate their award-winning maneuvers for the crowd. The team has just returned from a Southern California JROTC competition held on the Queen Mary in Long Beach. Eight trophies displaying the success of their performances in the competition will be featured during the event.

At 6:45 p.m., the guests will be greeted with a welcome from Principal Brian Smith and then have a chance to peruse the kaleidoscope of talents that exist in the fifteen departments of Mount Miguel High School.

"Booths will be set up in the inside of the auditorium exhibiting what San Miguel has to offer," said Arrieta.

FRIENDS OF THE LEMON GROVE LIBRARY MEETING SCHEDULED FOR APRIL 27

Next meeting of the Friends of the Lemon Grove Library will be at 9:00 a.m., Thursday, April 27, in the community room of the library. Knock on the glass doors for admission; the library does not officially open until 10:00 a.m.

AT THE MARCH MEETING ...

At his family's request, the Friends of the Lemon Grove Library established a memorial fund in the name of Rear Admiral Dwight Putnam, who died in early March. The Putnam family has been in Lemon Grove for 43 years, active in church and civic affairs, good friends to many people, here and all over the United States. Response to announcement of the memorial fund has been heartwarming; the very kind notes and letters accompanying checks have been handed to the family.

Rosemary Putnam thanked the group for their support during the family's bereavement and has asked that the memorial fund be allowed to accumulate until a suitable use is decided upon. Sonya Heiserman, librarian, announced that Vicki Mulrean, Lemon Grove's new branch manager would start work at our library on Friday, March 24. Vicki was previously at the Alpine branch library.

Plans and schedules were established for the March book sale at the library: sign-ups were made for morning and afternoon shifts. Two months ago, after our last sale, Rosemary Putnam had purchased two more tables for Friends' use at book sales; they will ease the space problem both at the library and at Old Time Days' sale. It was decided that we need a large, conspicuous sign to announce the policy on sale of used books. Proposed sign will say "No Pre-sale of Books" and provide space for date of the next sale. When completed, the sign will be posted at the library in April and May, and also used while we set up our display of books at Old Time Days sale site.

Tom Clabby, Lemon Grove councilman and member of the Senior Volunteer Patrol, received a request from a volunteer from the Red Cross for donated books and magazines to be given to Rancho del Campo High School, a large institution run by the Probation Department. Their representative will pick up left-overs from us at 3 p.m., after the sale.

Sonya brought up the need for new material in the Children's section of the library. We have book-and-tape sets with which a child can read a small book and at the same time listen to it on tape, but our sets are very old and many of the books or tapes are missing. Sonya's request for new selections at a cost of $300 was approved.

The children like paperback books and they love "Goosebumps," a new scary series. So much is the series loved, the books are never on the shelf. We have approved $200 for purchase of new paperback books, including "Goosebumps."

High school students frequently ask for material on current event topics. Sonya says that the series of books from the publisher of "Opposing Viewpoints" is excellent and presents the pros and cons of many current subjects. There are twelve or fifteen titles that we don't have; Sonya requested funds for purchase of twelve. The request was approved.

We discussed the mailing costs incurred by the Friends, and whether it would be advisable to request a permit for bulk mailing. Right now, especially since most of the stamps are donated by whoever is doing the mailing, we will continue as we are. Avril Lane, who researched costs, was thanked for her work and asked to keep the figures for our later reference. A membership list was handed around; members were asked to check to see that their dues had been paid and their names appear on the 1995 membership list. A number of members have not yet responded; we will make telephone calls to them before resorting to letters (and postal costs).

Mary Vinson reported the great success that the Friends of the Petaluma Library have had with their bookstore, which is located within the library. Open afternoons, bookstore sales of used books have resulted in $12,000 in just half a year.

The Friends of the L.G. Library have been asked for their input in the community's updating of its general plan. A rough draft of a proposed letter was circulated. Dona Clabby, who is a member of Lemon Grove's General Plan committee, volunteered to take to the committee any suggestions or recommendations that anyone has, whether as a resident or a Friend.

In the week preceding the book sale, Laura Barrett and Mary Vinson spent hours sorting books. Laura was both pleased and appalled when she was finishing up alone on Wednesday afternoon and forty boxes of donated books arrived. They were all sorted and stacked, though, in a work period after Thursday's meeting ended at 10 a.m.

INSIDE/OUTSIDE BOOK SALE EARNED $615

The Friends' March book sale used the (inside) community room and the (outside) sidewalk of the library for a sale which brought in $615 for a long day's work. Paperbacks, magazines, and children's books were displayed outside; hardbound fiction and non-fiction were on tables and book cases inside. The usual prices of 50c for hardbound, 25c for paperbacks, 10c for magazines were in effect. Very rough math indicates that we probably sold around 2,000 items; it is no wonder we were tired.

Harold Berg is always first, ahead of the earliest other starters. Tables were in place already and Harold gone when Oscar Cruz arrived at 6:15 a.m. to start on canopies and in moving racks and other tables into place. Rosemary Putnam and Patty Ayer were moving things into place, Mary Vinson at work, Sonya Heiserman opened the doors for us long before she was scheduled to be at work, and the Friends' volunteers came pouring in: Judy Fergus and daughter Ashley Land, Dorothy Geldreich, Reg and Sybil Carlson, Vella Beachley, Ron Day, Diane Bentley, Margrette Carr, Joe and Carol Stanley and daughter Beth Stanley, Annette Quintana, Laura Barrett, Margaret Babby, Tom and Dona Clabby, Pam Andersen with son Dane and daughter Katlyn, Avril Lane with son Pete and daughters Jessica and Rebecca Lane.

There were cashiers, baggers, sorters, and the Great Negotiator, Rosemary Putnam, who found agreeable prices for sets of law books, encyclopedia, and collections of vintage magazines. Some came early and set up; some came late and cleaned up; and a dedicated group spent the entire day, taking time out occasionally for a bite of pastry, some coffee provided by the library staff, or a quick lunch sandwich at the shop around the corner, where we are becoming known as regulars.

The Saturday of bright sunshine was welcome. We were delighted that so many people volunteered, and so many buyers contributed to the day's total of $615.

BOOK SALE COMING UP - SATURDAY, MAY 12/13

We did such a good job of selling at the March book sale, we need a new stock of books for the two days of selling at Lemon Grove's Old Time Days. Once again, we will be in our usual space at the front steps of the community room of Lemon Grove Middle School.

With massive effort, and lots of help from members of our families, neighbors, community groups, the Associated Student Body representatives from Lemon Grove Middle School, and from those wonderful Lemon Grove firefighters, we will have boxes and boxes of books loaded into cars and trucks at the library, then moved to our Old Time Days site, where we will unload, unpack, and display the books for sale.

But first, we need books, lots and lots of books. Please bring in what you have. Always in demand are cookbooks, children's books, Westerns, recent fiction of all kinds, crafts and sewing, gardening, computer lore, dictionaries, encyclopedia. Paperbacks are very popular. Whatever you have that is ready to be recycled out into the world again will be very welcome; somebody is looking for just the books that you will donate. Bag or box and take to the Lemon Grove Library, 8073 Broadway. The library is closed on Sunday and Monday; hours on other days are:

Tuesday	10:00 - 6:00	Friday	10:00 - 4:00
Wednesday	11:00 - 7:00	Saturday	10:00 - 4:00
Thursday	10:00 - 6:00

Old Time Days will be a two-day event: Friday, May 12, and Saturday, May 13. We will need our volunteers in full force, Friday morning to load and move books, Friday afternoon and evening to display and sell until dark, then back on Saturday morning to sell all day and, finally, close up and move back to the library at 3:00 p.m. We will discuss times and have a sign-up at the April 27 meeting.

There are fringe benefits to working at the sale during Old Time Days. When things quiet down in our own area, we alternate taking time out to circulate through other groups' displays, inspecting crafts, purchasing snacks, dining on a Kiwanis pancake breakfast or a plate of barbecue from the Lemon Grove fire department auxiliary. There will be funnel cake to be sampled from the Parents of the Helix High School Band, hot dogs from Mt. Miguel H.S. ; the Exchange Club will offer pizza. We shouldn't go hungry! We admire those bright-faced young people from the marching bands, check out the wearers of creative costumes that reflect turn-of-the-century Lemon Grove, treat a child to a llama ride. Greet many friends. We may be tired at the end, but we've had a good time at our own sale and at Old Time Days!

"Slowly, Slowly in the Wind" by Patricia Highsmith

This collection of short stories is a wonderful introduction to the intensely claustrophobic world of a truly great suspense writer. Let Highsmith tell you about "The Pond" which clutches and kills everything living which wanders near. In another story, when Ginnie Brixton collars you to tell you, yet again, about murdering an intruder in her kitchen, you sigh because you realize it's "Something You Have to Live With." Or, read about Skip Skipperton, who murdered his neighbor and used the body for a scarecrow in his cornfield. Read on to "Those Awful Dreams," which Highsmith peoples with a young Catholic couple caught in a net of poverty and brutality in a New York City slum. And don't miss "Woodrow Wilson's Tie" which young Clive stole from the wax museum when he replaced three wax figures with three freshly-murdered corpses. Then, back in New York City, see how old folks deal with young criminals in the old neighborhood in "Broken Glass." In "Please Don't Shoot the Trees", we find a way to deal with earthquakes in Southern California in the year 2049, and we also learn how Mother Nature takes her revenge. Most of the stories in the collection were written nearly twenty years ago, but their impact is not diminished with time; rather, Highsmith's brand of horror has a creepy fascination that improves with age. MC

"North of Montana" by April Smith

I thought that I had my hands on a book about the West, or maybe Canada, which is certainly north of Montana. The dust jacket on the book didn't give me a clue as to the treasure that I had found. It is a real find, written by a new author.

Far from being historical, this novel is as current as today's newspaper ... .and it certainly is deserving of a more attractive book jacket. This fine mystery/suspense/FBI procedural/multicultural story is laid in today's Los Angeles, and the "Montana" of the title refers to a street name. It is a taut plot, with sub-plots skillfully interwoven, characters with lives and personalities so clear that you feel you know them. The heroine/narrator is an FBI agent assigned to an investigation that involves the sale of illegal drugs and it takes her to the extremes of wealth and poverty in Los Angeles.

There is violent death in these pages, self-serving use of power, office intrigue, drug-dealing, love and denial, racial prejudice illegal entry to the U.S., all presented at absolutely full power, with no lags anywhere. I intend to remember the author's name; I'm sure we will hear from her again. MV

"Ripley's Game" by Patricia Highsmith

Highsmith is best known for her first novel, "Strangers on a Train", which was made into a highly successful, now classic, movie directed by Alfred Hitchcock and starring Farley Granger, Ruth Roman, and Robert Walker.

"Ripley's Game" is one of three novels featuring Tom Ripley, an American living near Paris, whose profession is murder. He is chillingly urbane, educated, witty, artistic, civilized, charming and utterly without conscience. His "game" this time around begins when an unassuming Englishman also living in France slights him unwittingly and prompts Ripley to exact a devious revenge. As the poor Englishman becomes more and more compromised by Ripley's plot, Ripley himself takes pity on him and "helps" him on his downward spiral. The only person who suspects Ripley's motives is the Englishman's wife, who refers to Ripley as "that odious personage." This is a riveting read, succinct of plot and eloquent of language. MC

"Child of Silence by Abigail Padgett

Barbara "Bo" Bradley is a child abuse investigator for the juvenile welfare division in San Diego. A case is assigned to her involving a four-year-old boy found by an old Indian woman. The child was tied to a mattress in the ruins of a building near a Paiute Indian settlement. Bo goes to see the child and recognizes that he is not mentally deficient, but deaf, as was Bo's sister before she took her own life. The challenge of the deaf boy signals the way for Bo's own life to be healed from the guilt she carries.

Comments: Bo is a manic-depressive, medicated with lithium. She must deal with subjective and objective reality as her mind races in a manic grip. This unusual story illumines the experience of mania and the truth that a person who pushes something away gets caught and remains an emotional prisoner until what is feared is confronted. This first novel's literary (almost poetic) style is balanced with moving characters and suspense. AQ

"Dark Rivers of the Heart" by Dean Koontz

Dean Koontz can scare me just by putting his fingers on a typewriter keyboard. Whatever he writes, no matter how cheery the subject, I can feel terrible things impending. This thriller has no fantasy/horror creatures in it; the creatures of horror are all human, and the most frightening part is that you can see in the newspapers that Koontz' premise may be truer than we once believed.

A man with a terrible secret in his past is drawn to a mysterious woman on the run from a clandestine government group. Both sides in this ongoing search/flee story have the use of large sums of money and access to computers that control the lives, livelihoods, bank records, and personal reputations of every citizen in the U.S. — and on the government side, they can call upon the use of weapons, personnel, equipment, of any government agency they choose, even including diversion and use of spy satellites in the sky. Be sure to read Koontz' "Afterword" at the close of the last chapter, in which he refers to David Koresh (Davidian cult) and others who have met the power of the government. You'll be scared, too. MV

"Edith's Diary" by Patricia Highsmith

Another great read from a master of psychological suspense, this time an insidiously frightening descent into madness. Edith Howland's life doesn't seem to be all that much worse than anyone else's: over the years, her pet cat and beloved Aunt Melanie die; her husband leaves her for a younger woman; her lazy son still lives at home at age 27; her ex-husband's bedridden, incontinent Uncle George requires three meals a day plus tea; she loses her job at the gift shop; her magazine articles seldom sell.

At first, Edith only occasionally writes in her diary, but when she does, her entries describe a different world from the one with which she actually copes. Her diary son is a successful engineer; her diary ex-husband and his Uncle George do not exist; her diary pet cat still curls on the sill; her diary Aunt Melanie still visits twice a year. Later, as she writes more often in her diary, Edith finds it increasingly difficult to separate real events from the events she describes. This novel is scary because it shows how easily a perfectly normal, rational, person can slip slowly, almost imperceptibly, into insanity.

"Undue Influence" by Steve Martini

Lots of action in this thriller which turns into a courtroom drama. The hero is an attorney, left alone with a child to raise after his wife's death. His relatives by marriage become embroiled in divorce, a child custody battle, and then the murder of the 2nd wife and accusation of first-degree murder against Wife #1. It's good reading, and the legal maneuvering in the courtroom when the case comes to trial will hold your interest. MV

"Rogue Warrior: Green Team" by Richard Marcinko and John Weisman

Marcinko's first book, "Rogue Warrior" was an autobiography. The next two, "Rogue Warrior: Red Cell" and now "Rogue Warrior: Green Team" are fiction.

The Rogue Warrior is larger-than-life; his adventures more dangerous; his courage beyond credibility; exploits violent, language coarse. This third book, in which the RW and his Green Team become the nemesis of a terror network of global proportions is filled with action as they fight the forces of evil. Marcinko and his co-author have worn out the Rogue Warrior concept; the adventure has become tiresome. BV

"Turtle Baby" by Abigail Padgett

This is the best book yet by this San Diego author. Her heroine continues to be Bo Bradley, a social worker whose own life is complicated by her lifelong battle with a brain disorder. In earlier books we have come to know her dog, Millie, office-mate Estrella, the urbane Dr. LaMarche, who provides some romance as well as moral support and professional advice.

The poisoning of a tiny Mayan baby, the question of his paternity, why his mother tried to hide him, what clues may be found in love songs sung in a Tijuana cantina, are questions that don't seem to have answers to be found in Rancho Santa Fe and the Garden District of New Orleans. Padgett knows our area, from the sounds and odors of Tijuana, to the quiet emptiness of Anza-Borrego, eucalyptus of Rancho Santa Fe.

Padgett's previous books are "Child of Silence" and "Strawgirl", but each book will stand on its own. MV approached, Cunning emphasized the importance of the parent to go out and do his or her homework to become educate on the issues. Issues including how HIV is spread by adults to children and vice versa.

According to Cunning, most children with HIV have become infected from their HIV infected mothers; the virus can be transmitted to the baby during pregnancy, at birth or through breast feeding. Also, children can become infected if sexually abused by a person with HIV through bodily transmitted fluids.

Not all children who have been infected with HIV will go on to develop the acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) that weakens the body, making it incapable to fight off diseases and infections that can eventually result in death. HIV can produce mild to very severe illnesses.

Statistics prove that children often develop symptoms of HIV infection earlier than adults due to their immature immune system. Most seem to develop symptoms by two years of age, and others by school age. Symptoms can include abnormal growth patterns, multiple bacterial infections, and an enlarged spleen and liver.

According to an AIDS Epidemiology San Diego countywide report, as of March 1995, 6,651 cases of AIDS were reported, and 4,192 have resulted in deaths. Of those reported AIDS cases, 38 are pediatric cases, which have resulted in 22 deaths.

"It's so important that precautions are taken and tests sporadically taken," said Cunning. It takes up to six months for HIV antibodies to show in the blood test . If someone doesn't have a test, it could take up to 10 years or longer before physical symptoms show, and meanwhile they could be passing it on to someone else."

When it comes to cuts and scrapes on the playground, Cunning suggested a new First Aid method that school health aides, teachers, and parents should adhere to.

"If a child has been hurt, and there's an open bleeding wound, never touch the blood," said Cunning. Your first aid kit should include a pair of latex gloves. "Put those on when dressing the cut, and immediately wash your hands after you takeoff the gloves because blood could have been transferred onto the gloves. "

Other precautionary methods suggested to the crowd were the following: When changing wet or soiled diapers, hands should be immediately washed, and the diaper and gloves should be placed in a plastic bag and discarded.

Things To Do!

Spring theater season big on comedy

The spring theater season begins this weekend with lots of comedy.

Lamplighters

The Lamplighters Community Theatre presentation of "A Touch of Spring," by Samuel Taylor, will open tomorrow at the theater at 8053 University Ave. (next to the La Mesa Library.)

In "A Touch of Spring," a conservative American businessman arrives in Rome to attend to urgent family matters. Complications, romance and hilarity ensue with the arrival of a professional assistant, an exuberant Italian who, for a fee, will cut through any red tape.

Directed by Pat Smith, the cast includes Angus Brodie, Susan Clausen, Maxime Dumesnil, Tony E. Eisenhower, Edward C. Goodell, David John Hough, Ray Paul Lybarger, E. Duane Weekly and Ayla Koren Yarkut.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through May 21, with 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays. For ticket information, call 464-4598.

Octad-One

The Octad-One presentation of "Park Your Car in Harvard Yard," by Israel Horovitz, will also open tomorrow at the Grove Playhouse, Market Place at the Grove, 3450 College Ave. (next to Pic-n-Save).

"Park Your Car in Harvard Yard" is a serious comedy about the toughest, meanest teacher to ever set foot in Gloucester High School and a woman he flunked 25 years prior.

Directed by Donal Pugh, the cast features Martin F. Gerrish and Ginger Radenheimer.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through May 21, with 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays. For ticket information, call 583-2418.

Grossmont College

The Theatre Arts Department will present "Albert's Bridge" by Tom Stoppard. This comedy follows Albert, who has a degree in philosophy and a job as a bridge painter. Caught in the maze of a bureaucratic nightmare, Albert ascends his bridge to gain a new perspective on life.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. April 26, 28, 29 and May 3, 5 and 6 in the Grossmont College Recital Hall, Room 220. For information, call 465-1700, ext. 234.

Band to unveil new music

The San Diego Concert Band will present the world premier public performance of two new pieces of music at its annual Spring Celebration Concert, 4 p.m. Sunday in the East County Performing Arts Center, 200 W. Main St. in El Cajon.

Band member and composer J. Abelardo Flores has written a fanfare, "Frontispiece," and "Song and Prance," a piece that utilizes the unique range of the solo bass clarinet, an instrument not normally associated with solo performances. It was commissioned and will be played by Leslie Olson.

The 80-member, all-volunteer band is much like a pops orchestra, playing a broad range of music with popular appeal, from classic to pop and from Bach to Mannheim Steamroller.

The band members rehearse every Thursday evening at Grossmont High School under the direction of San Diego State University music professor Charles Yates and Warren Torns, director of music for Mount Carmel High School. It is part of the Grossmont College Adult Education program.

Leslie Olson

Tickets are available from any band member, local music store or at the performing arts center. Suggested donation $7 - children under 12 are free. For further information, call Yates at 444-4118.

Chicano author to read work at Grossmont

Storyteller and novelist Daniel Reveles will give a public reading of his collection of short stories, "Enchiladas, Rice and Beans," from 7 - 9 p.m. April 27 in Room 575 at Grossmont College.

The reading is being presented by Grossmont College's Puente Project, English Department and Associated Student Body.

Reveles was born in Los Angeles of Mexican-born parents. He has been involved in the entertainment industry since his youth as a songwriter, late-night disc jockey and producer of commercials. He has written and directed a wide variety of foreign documentaries for American television, including countries such as India, Turkey, Mexico and Guatemala.

He lives in Villa Mirasol, his ranch, on the outskirts of Tecate, Baja California, where he devotes his time to writing and playing chamber music. "Enchiladas, Rice and Beans" was published in 1994. Admission and parking are free. For more information, call Joe Medina, at 465-1700, ext. 507.

Backcountry art festival set

The fourth annual Santa Ysabel Art and Music Festival will be held all day Saturday and Sunday at the intersection of highways 78 and 79, Santa Ysabel.

A celebration of spring, the two-day festival will bring to the public, free of charge, a mixture of a fine art juried show, entertainment by a variety of local musicians and performances by the Ramona Ballet Theatre and Ramona Del Sol.

The festival is sponsored by the Santa Ysabel Gallery, with proceeds benefitting local artists and art organizations. For more information, call 765-1676.

Reel Brief

'Tommy Boy' great slapstick

by Betty Jo Tucker

Funnyman Chris Farley from "Saturday Night Live" treats moviegoers to his special brand of slapstick in "Tommy Boy," Paramount's recent release with David Spade, Brian Dennehy, Bo Derek and Rob Lowe.

Farley plays Tommy Callahan, a klutzy college graduate who is forced to head his family's auto parts business upon the death of his father (Dennehy, marvelous as always).

Tommy gets help (?) from Richard Hayden (Spade, also from "SNL"), an obnoxiously officious, long-time Callahan employee who is jealous of Tommy's relationship with his father. These two embark on a whirlwind sales trip to save the business from a takeover by the King of Auto Parts (Dan Ackroyd in an amusing cameo role).

Some hilarious scenes between Farley and Spade, plus fine comedic performances by the entire cast, make "Tommy Boy" worth seeing. Even childish jokes work in this movie. For example, when Tommy gives a puppet show-like sales pitch for Callahan brake pads, we can't help laughing and hoping he makes the sale. Only the jokes about being fat fail.

With this exception, "Tommy Boy" should please and entertain moviegoers who enjoy a good slapstick comedy in the style of "Naked Gun 33 1/3" and "Wayne's World." (Director Peter Segal directed "Naked Gun" and writers Bonny Turner and Terry Turner wrote "Wayne's World.")
